

ABOUT

Hi. I'm [Your Name].
I built Preface for under-40s.

Travel-advisor practice based in Toronto. Building the kind of relationship our parents had with their travel agents — updated for how the rest of us actually book.

THE SHORT VERSION

TICO #XXXXXXX
FORA TRAVEL ADVISOR
BASED IN TORONTO
20+ AI'S STAYED
30+ COUNTRIES

I'm 29, Toronto-based, and I've spent the last [X] years in sales — long enough to know that the right relationship beats the right software, every time.

Travel was always the thing. I've been to 30+ countries, slept at 20+ all-inclusives across the Caribbean and Mexico, and somewhere along the way realized everyone I knew was spending $8K on a honeymoon via Expedia and getting nothing back for it.

That's the founding insight, basically. You're paying full price either way — the question is whether you arrive to upgrades, breakfast, and a human you can text, or whether you arrive to a basic room and a Bangalore voicemail.

I got TICO certified, joined Fora Travel — the millennial-focused host agency — and built Preface. We're for people who'd rather not Expedia it.

WHAT I ACTUALLY BELIEVE

Travel advisors aren't dead. The old ones are just hard to find under 60.

01

Same price. Better arrival.

The hotel pays our commission, not you. You pay what Expedia would charge. You arrive to upgrades, breakfast, and resort credits. That's the whole thing.

02

Opinions, not brochures.

Most travel content reads like a 1996 brochure. I'd rather tell you the truth — Sandals is fine, Excellence is better, sargassum season is real — than write "Indulge in unparalleled luxury."

03

A human on WhatsApp.

Flight cancelled in Lisbon at 2am? Hotel overbooked? Resort lost your reservation? You text me. I fix it. Try that with Booking.com.

04

No minimum, no membership.

This isn't an exclusive concierge club with a $50K trip minimum. $3K bach weekend or $80K family pilgrimage — same energy, same care.

05

Built for under-40s.

I'm 29. Most of my clients are 28-36. I know what your honeymoon shortlist looks like, what your friends are posting about, and what's actually new vs newly-marketed.

06

One advisor, ten years.

Bach trip. Honeymoon. Babymoon. Family vacations. Milestone celebrations. The relationship is the product. One trusted person handling everything for the next decade.

RECEIPTS

Real credentials. None of them faked.

F

Independent advisor with Fora — modern, millennial-focused host agency. Direct access to Aman, Belmond, Six Senses, Excellence, Rosewood, and major chain preferred-partner programs.

ALL-INCLUSIVES STAYED

Excellence, Zoetry, Le Blanc, Sandals, Atelier, Hyatt Ziva, Royalton, Beaches, Grand Velas, Rosewood Mayakoba, Andaz Mayakoba, Nizuc, Unico, and more. I have notes.

COUNTRIES TRAVELED

Caribbean deep, Europe broad, with extended time in Buenos Aires upcoming. Pacific Mexico, Iceland, Israel, Spain, Italy, Greece, Portugal, Croatia. The travel CV is real.

A FEW QUICK ONES

Things people ask. Honest answers.

Q / WHERE WOULD YOU GO IF YOU HAD A FREE WEEK RIGHT NOW?

Buenos Aires for the food, or Andaz Mayakoba if I wanted to lie down. Probably the latter.

Q / MOST OVERRATED DESTINATION?

Tulum, by a wide margin. The beach is fine. Everything else is performance.

Q / MOST UNDERRATED?

Curaçao. The new Sandals there is genuinely good and you're not fighting 4,000 American spring-breakers for a beach chair.

Q / BEST MEAL YOU'VE HAD AT A RESORT?

The Italian restaurant at Grand Velas Riviera Maya. I'd fly back for it.

Q / THE TRIP YOU'RE MOST PROUD OF PLANNING?

A 14-person multigen family trip to Israel last fall. Three generations, two airlines, four hotels, one perfect itinerary. That's the work.

WANT TO ACTUALLY TALK?

No pitch, no pressure.

If you have a trip coming up — or you're 9 months out and trying to figure out where to start — book a call. I'll either be the right fit, or tell you I'm not.
